Lateſt from Europe.

BOSTON, Auguſt 24.

Arrived here yeſterday, the ſhip John Adams, John Wood, eſquire commander, in 38 days from Liverpool. By this arrival, and the polite attention of captain W. we have received London papers up to the 12th ult. bringing accounts eleven days later than any arrival that has reached us. From an attentive peruſal of their contents we have made a ſelection of the moſt important articles they contain, as will be ſeen by a recurrence to our foreign department of news. We alſo add the following ſummary of intelligence:

Great Britain never before ſhewed ſuch an union of ſentiment and ſpirit. Her meaſures are calculated for the greateſt ſecurity by land, and victory at ſea.—The government are continually receiving addreſſes in ſupport of the war, &c. from every part of the united kingdom, from all ranks and conditions in ſociety, breathing nothing but manlineſs and vigor. The following extracts from ſundry reſolutions adopted on the 11th July by the lord Mayor and Aldermen of London, will ſhew in a miniature the ſpirit that pervades every part of Great Britain:—"Reſolved unanimouſly, That this court feeling with indignant pride the inſulting vaunts of inordinate ambition, (though at the ſame time ſenſible how painful the neceſſity has been of engaging this kingdom in a deſtructive war, yet as this awful criſis exhibits to the view of the people freedom or ſlavery, exiſtence as an independent nation, or extirpation and annihilation) ſolemnly call upon their fellow citizens, and every individual inhabitant, within the metropolis, to enroll himſelf, in one of the claſſes hereby recommended and ſpecified, in order that all may be prepaired and participate in the honor of chaſtiſing the inſolence of an implicable, foe, ſhould he ever dare to venture upon Britiſh Ground. The court take this opportunity of congratulating the country upon the preſent happy extinction of parties, and upon the harmony and unanimity now exiſting in all ranks, being convincing proofs of the zeal and affection of all orders for our beloved king and glorious conſtitution, which muſt ever place the ſubjects of theſe realms above the menances of any power that ſhall pretend to give law, or preſcribe limits to the policy and intereſts the nation." In a debate in the houſe of commons, on the ſubject of the invaſion, colonel Crauford obſerved. "We have a capital, ſituated within ſeventy miles of the coaſt, the poſſeſſion of which is not only deciſive of the fate of the war, but alſo he might venture to ſay, decided the fate of the nation: (A cry of no! no!) I muſt at leaſt be allowed to maintain the ſituation of the country would be really deſparate in ſuch a caſe." After the ſecretary of war had replied, Mr. Mac Naughten, with ſome degree of warmth, declared he never could bear to hear it ſaid that the capture of even the city of London would be the conqueſt of the empire; and he would have the honorable gentleman (Mr. Crauford) and he would have Bonaparte know, that the people of Great Britain, and the people of Ireland, would conteſt every inch of the ground with him, and be at laſt driven into the ſea, before they would yield to the proudeſt armies of France. [Here was a moſt enthuſiaſtic cry from every quarter of the houſe, in token of the moſt decided approbation of this gentleman's ſentiments, of Hear! Hear!] No continued the honorable gentleman, he truſted too much in the high ſpirit and ancient proweſs of Britons and of Iriſhmen, ever to ſee they would ſubmit to the domineering and deſpotic yoke of France; and he hoped that peace would never be made untill the enemy did make an invaſion, when he knew that they would get ſuch "a dreſſing" as would ſettle that ſpeculation for ever. He knew and truſted, that if they ever ſhould venture to the Britiſh ſhores, they would be accoſted as the Roman gladiators, when preparing to combat and die in the preſence of their emperors, accoſted them—"Mirituri te ſalutant."

Private letters from Paris, June 29, ſtate—"Every day couriers arrive from the Firſt conſul, and couriers are diſpatched to the Firſt Conſul; as Talleyrand has not yet left Paris, and the daily conferences continue between him and Count Markoff, many flatter themſelves with the hope, that the mediation of Ruſſia may not be ineffectual; perſons in the intereſt of the conſullar government deſire this opinion to gain ground, no doubt to quiet, during Bonaparte's abſence, the public, very much exaſperated with the war. Bonaparte travels ſlowly, to give certain indemnified princes time to arrive at Bruſſels and decorate his triumphant entry. Are however, theſe princes no more ſcrupulous as to gratitude, than they have been nice in their honorable negotiation? the firſt conſul may be deceived in his modeſt expectation. From our ſea ports we continue to hear of nothing but captures, loſſes and failures; of a total ſtagnation in trade, and a great ſcarcity of money, of miſtruſt, diffidence, and deception. Government encourages as much as poſſible plays and pantomimes, in which England is degraded, and the Engliſh nation abuſed. Every city where the conſul ſtops theatrical dulneſs aſſiſts departmental meanneſs to flatter the great man, and to calumniate Great Britain.

Notwithſtanding all the active endeavors of our government, the building of gun boats goes on but ſlowly, and the ſubſcriptions for building are ſo trifling that it would be a diſhonor to publiſh them, even in the official Moniteur: We are generous only in words, and liberal only in our addreſſes; ſo far we repay our rulers in their own coin. On the 24th of June, after maſs, the firſt conſul left St. Cloud for Brabant, and no ſooner was he gone, than all the legions of the police agents and ſpies here were put into unuſual activity. The guards are doubled every where, and a company of the conſular guards placed to protect the telegraph. General Junot, the commander at Paris, has been ordered by the conſul to head the patrole himſelf, every night during the conſul's abſence. Domiciliary viſits were made laſt night in the Palais Royal, and in all the hotels of the neighbouring ſtreets, and ſeveral ſuſpected perſons were taken and ſent to priſon. Theſe meaſures of terror have been adviſed by the grand judge, and the ſenators Lucian Bonaparte, Fouche, Rœderer, and Le Fevre, on a pretended diſcovery of the united efforts of the royaliſt and jacobin factions to ſpread diſcontent and to propoſe a new revolution. The ſenator Sieyes was told, on the 20th inſtant, by the firſt phyſician to the firſt conſul, that a viſit to Spa, for ſix weeks, would be very uſeful to his health, and he left Paris immediately, to drink the Spa water. General Andreoſſi has been ordered by the government to remove ſixteen leagues from the capital. He incurred the diſpleaſure of the Corſican, from his honeſt refuſal to become the medium of the moſt groſs and infamous falſehoods reſpecting the affairs in Great Britain. It is confidently ſaid at Paris, that Joſeph Bonaparte was very anxious to avert the renewal of hoſtilities with Great Britain, and after many vain exortations to his brother, concluded with ſolemnly predicting that if the latter obſtinately perſevered in reviving the war with England, there would not be a Bonaparte alive in France in the courſe of ſix months."

Bonaparte is continuing his tour, amidſt the addreſſes of prieſts and prefects, who vie with each other in the groſſneſs and impiety of their adulation. But the prefect of the Pas de Calais ſeems to have borne away the palm from all his brethren, He tells Bonaparte "that tranquil with reſpect to our fate, we know that, to enſure the happineſs and glory of France, to render to all people the freedom of commerce and the ſeas, to humble the audacious deſtroyers of the repoſe of the univerſe, and to fix at length peace upon earth, God created Bonaparte, and reſted his labor!!!" The Archbiſhop of Rouen obſerves, "Let us beſeech the almighty, that the Man of his right hand (l'homme de ſa droite) that man who under his direction and by his orders, has done ſo much for the reſtoration of his worſhip, and who purpoſes to perform ſtill more, may continue, like Cyrus, to be the Chriſt of Providence!" Flattery and impiety can go no farther.

The free navigation of the Weſer and the Elbe, was to be ſpeedily re-eſtabliſhed. General Mortier was employed in drawing up certain regulations, which were expected to be publiſhed in a few days. In the mean time, the French miniſter, to the circle of Lower Saxony, has formally declared, that, as the marching of the French troops had merely for its object the occupying of his Britannic majeſty's territories in Germany, all the adjacent countries how near ſoever to thoſe ſtates, and whatever their political or commercial relations were might reſt aſſured that their neutrality would be reſpected.

The court of Denmark has declared that it will preſerve the ſtricteſt neutrality. An army of 23,000 men has been ordered to march to Holſtien and Schleſwick, to cover the Daniſh frontiers.

The court of N——e has made a ſimilar declaration of neutrality; but her conduct is not very reconcileable with ſuch a declaration of neutrality; for 12,000 French troops have entered the Abruzzes. The Neapolitan government, however, were forced to permit their towns to be garriſoned by French troops; Auſtria not chuſing to interfere at preſent, and the power of Naples being incapable of reſiſting the arms of France.

NEW YORK, Auguſt 29.

We acknowledge our obligations to captain Kemp, of the regular trading ſhip Oneida Chief, who politely favored the Editor of the Mercantile Advertiſer with a file of London papers to the evening of the 16th July—three days later than were received by the Caledonia. They do not, however, contain any article of conſequence.

Count Haugwitz, the Pruſſian Miniſter for Foreign Affairs, is diſmiſſed, and in diſgrace. His diſgrace is attributed to ſome diſpatches from England, which he is ſaid to have concealed from the King till they could no longer produce their intended effect. The King of Pruſſia was, it is ſaid, requeſted, in thoſe diſpatches, to occupy the Electorate of Hanover before the arrival of the French, and to indemnify himſelf by appropriating the revenues of that country to his own uſe.

Letters from Peterſburg mention that his Imperial Majeſty had received the news of the occupation of the Electorate of Hanover by the French, which is ſaid to have highly diſpleaſed him. The Ruſſian fleets in the Baltic are ordered to be reinforced, and, if the French do not ſoon quit the mouths of the rivers Elbe and Weſer, it is thought more than probable that a conſiderable Ruſſian fleet, with troops on board, would ſoon make its appearance at Travemond near Lubeck.

BALTIMORE, August 30.

The French in their zeal to extirpate British commerce and manufactures seem to care very little what trouble they give to neutral nations. The following letter, which has been politely communicated to us, contains the arrangements which have been adopted by the French commercial agent at Rotterdam, respecting American vessels clearing out from that place for French ports. Similar regulations will probably be adopted by other agents in the different ports of Europe and elsewhere, conformably to the decree we yesterday published:

(Translated for the Federal Gazette.)

ROTTERDAM, 12th Messidor, (11th year.)

The commissary of commercial relations of the French republic to Mr. Alexander, American consul for this city.

Sir,

I have the honor to communicate the decree which the French government have just enacted, for preventing the introduction into France, of every description of merchandize from the colonies or manufactories of England, and to instruct you in the formalities necessary to be observed by foreign navigators entering the ports of France, in order that they may be admitted without difficulty.

You will observe that the second article exacts the most rigid attention to the lading of vessels destined for France.—The necessity of conforming with the views of government, and at the same time to facilitate the means of fulfilling the formalities required by this decree, induces me to adopt the following regulations, which you will oblige me by communicating to the captains of your nation, that they may conform thereto.

Every captain or supercargo intending to load for a French port, should declare at the French consulate office—

That he will not embark any merchandize without the permission of the charterer and agreeably to the decree regulating the lading.

The permit should be delivered into the consular office, containing a sworn declaration of the charterer, comprising a mark, weight and quantity, agreeable to the original bills; and he should further accompany the above with the declaration of the broker who made the purchases, or with such other vouchers as will fully prove that the merchandize is the produce of neither the commerce, colonies, nor manufactories of England.

He shall, as before stated, deliver the original bills of merchandize, and when delivered they shall entitle him to a permit to load.

When the captains or supercargoes have finished their lading, they shall return two manifests to the commissary's office, signed by them and countersigned by the consul of their nation, or when that shall be impracticable, then by the commissary himself. The manifest shall contain the particulars of the marks, numbers, weights, and quantity of each package, and each package of merchandize ought to be accompanied with a separate certificate'—One of the manifests to remain in the commissary's office, and the other to be delivered to the captain, countersigned by me. And there shall, moreover, be delivered to the captain such other certificates as the decree of government requires.

(Signed)

C. GUYZ.

To Let,

☞ In a part of this day's impression the date and number, were accidentally left as they stood yesterday.

The conduct of the British cruizers to American seamen calls loudly for redress. We were unwilling to impute the first instance we heard of their forcibly taking our fellow citizens out of our vessels, to any other motive than the arrogance of a wanton individual; but when we see this shameful conduct repeated by different vessels of war, we must believe the outrage is committed under official orders. While this country observes a strict neutrality, at any rate while no complaint is made, it is unwarrantable and cruel; and however passive our government may have been of late, we sincerely hope they will, in this instance, find the immediate necessity of proceeding with firmness to obtain satisfaction.

How fleeting is popularity in the system of democracy! the fashion, as it were, of a day. BURR, who was so much the idol of the party as to have an equal number of votes for president—nay, who might have filled that dignity, is now despised—cast off like a recreant by those who but late bawled out his praise.

No circumstance can lead to the annihilation of faction half so fast as to have the demons of discord begin to worry each other. In this way the private citizen gets a fair view of the principles of the men in whom they might otherwise have long continued a misplaced confidence. It is to be hoped that the electors of our adjoining state will discover, from the recent disputes of those high in office, that which may restore Maryland to its wonted rank in federalism; by returning such representatives as will have the welfare of their country alone, in view.

Among the most contemptable of the dirty tricks lately played off by the meanest of the party understrappers, is that put upon the editor of a federal publication called "The Balance." We do not mean his late prosecution, where a democratic verdict tells us, "we must not speak the truth"—no, we allude to a certain brainless scribbler in the Newark Centinel, who had (though in truth he was far beneath notice) fallen under the lash of this same editor. The little soul, overmatched in a fair literary war, played off the childish trick of sending an anonimous letter, per post, under the fictitious signature of a young democrat, for the gratifying idea, nay, the avowed purpose of putting his antagonist to the expence of postage. The editor has sacrificed half a column of his paper in bringing this little bit of darkness to the light. When the name of this literary champion is known, we hope all the "little boys and girls" will retort upon him in kind—and that they may not want a theme, such pretty distich as the following will suit such a wight to a turn:

Young Democrat,
"I smell a Rat."

The following relation may be depended upon as true in every circumstance An American vessel, belonging, we believe, to Salem, and lately from St. Domingo to Baltimore, having on board 61 French passengers and their property, was met by two English ships of war, who, seeing her colours, gave no molestation. Soon after she was brought to by another English frigate. The poor passengers prepared, with what fortitude they could muster, for the loss of their whole property, if not for that captivity, which, as a measure of retaliation, for the detention of the English visitants in France, they had reason to expect. The commander of the frigate inquired of the American master, what might be the amount of French property on board? He answered, that it was considerable, but that he knew not its value. Does it amount to two thousand dollars? The master answered that it was more than two thousand dollars. Does it amount, said the British captain, to ten thousand dollars? The American captain said, it possibly might, he could not answer for its amount: it was, probably, between two and ten thousand dollars.

If it is no more than ten thousand dollars, said the commander of the frigate, I will not deprive these poor Frenchmen of it. He then told the American he might make sail—and the vessel and passengers have lately arrived safe at Baltimore. We are sorry our informant does not recollect the name of the British captain. This account we had from some of the French passengers; they added that the French army in St. Domingo must inevitably soon surrender to the English, or evacuate the island.

MR. SNOWDEN,

From the usual impartiality of your paper, I am led to hope you will not refuse the following a place in to-morrow's Advertiser.

Though I am far from wishing to oppose my judgment to that of the public; yet, I cannot but think that the criticism of an individual, should not always be regarded as the channel of general opinion; and finding myself attacked with much harshness in the Advertiser of Monday, I think it my duty to make the public acquainted with the circumstances which occasioned my attempting the part designed for Mr. Bailey.

On Friday night Mr. Bailey was so much indisposed, that he was under the necessity of sending the manager notice, that he should not, unless better be able to play the following evening: I was then sent for, was requested to study the part, and told that if I did not, the play, in all probability, could not be performed; rather than the piece should be put off to the evident detriment of the Theatre, and disappointment of the public, I undertook it; by no means a short one; I went home at ten o'clock Friday night, and did not quit the book till four in the morning; I rose at six, and renewed my application. Much intimidated, and somewhat indisposed from fatigue of mind, and want of bodily rest, I attempted the part A handbill, previous to the play, was sent into the house, mentioning the change of the Farce, and alteration of character in the Play, in consequence of Mr. Bailey's illness. The writer of the critique seems to wonder not only at the disappointment he experienced, but at the reason of it; if he did not see the handbill, he should have recollected, ere he dipped his pen in satiric gall, that the alteration of so essential a character, could not have been made but from the illness, or absence of the performer designed for the part. I now appeal to the unbiassed judgment of the public, if the attack of Monday were dictated by that candor and feeling which should ever govern the pen of criticism; and the piece having been last night performed according to the original call, if, under the circumstances here mentioned, the truth of which every one in the company can testify, I proved myself the "locum tenens" for Mr. Bailey, which the author describes me.

I am, Sir,
Your humble servant,
And that of the public.

United States of America,
Fifth Circuit, Virginia District,
May Term, 1803.

Under a Decree of the said Court,

We the Commissioners will expose to PUBLIC SALE, for ready money, on the premises, at 12 o'clock, on Friday the 30th day of September next,

THAT VALUABLE & EXTENSIVE

called Mount Salus, alias Millthrope, lying in Fairfax county, on Difficult and Wolf Trapruns, containing by Deed 550 acres & by survey 673 acres. The Mansion House is on a high healthy and agreeable situation, convenient to which are springs of good water—The house is 40 by 18 feet two rooms on a floor, with a nine feet passage and stair case, two brick chimnies, with a fire place to each room, a piazza the whole length of the front, a cellar 40 by 18 walled with stone and divided into two apartments. There are several small buildings near the Mansion House and garden. There are also a valuable Merchant and Grist Mill, Saw Mill, Distillery, Miller's House and Overseer's House.—The Mill House is 40 by 30, two stories high, half of the lower story of stone, the other part framed work, and covered with shingles. There are one pair of Burr, and one pair of Cologne stones, three sifting cloths almost new, and one screen, all now in use in manufacturing wheat and grinding grist. The still house 40 by 30, one story high, walls of stone and shingled roof, the floors planked, the upper laid for malting grain, and troughs fixed round the whole house constructed to carry water to every vessel which may need it. Three stills and one boiler can be worked to advantage in said house. The waters on Wolf Trap, on which the mill and saw mill stand, are constant streams. The situation for country custom, or purchasing wheat is exceeded by none in the county or neighborhood, not being more than 17 miles from Alexandria, and 13 from George Town, where there are excellent markets for country produce of every description; and about 14 miles from the city of Washington. The land is fertile and productive, and the soil well adapted to receive improvement, from the use of plaister of Paris. There are upwards of 3000 pannels of fence on the land, and about 160 or 170 acres of well timbered land belonging to the tract. There have been nearly 20 acres of timothy made, lying on Wolf Trap and Difficult runs; 50 acres more may be made at a small expence. This farm enjoys many natural advantage which are unnecessary for us to mention, it being taken for granted that any person wishing to buy such property will avail themselves of the opportunity of viewing the premises, previous to the day of sale.

The terms of which are, one third of the money to be paid on the day of sale, (at which time deeds will be made the purchaser) one third in six months, and the other third in twelve months, with the interest accruing on the two last payments from the day of sale. A deed of trust will be expected to secure the last payments.

Some informality in the decree prevented the sale agreeably to the former notice. This defect being obviated by the parties, the property will most certainly be sold as now notified.

Captain James Wiley, residing near the land, will shew the premises, and also a plat of the survey, which is left with him for the information of those concerned.

The title papers will be exhibited on the day of sale.
